

REDS REPORT BIGGEST DAY'S HAUL OF WAR

Allied Forces Advancing on Foggia Airbase

Nazi Positions In Grave Danger

By NOLAN NORGAARD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 27 (AP)—Allied armies in Italy surged forward tonight along a 108-mile front to within striking distance of the great Foggia airbase near the Adriatic and the key highway center of Avellino, possession of which would flank Naples to the east and unlock a new road into the demolished port city.

After a solid week of pounding from the American Fifth Army and Allied air might, the Germans retreated ten miles in a critical mountain sector northeast of Salerno and the pursuing Yanks captured Cassano, fifty miles due east of Naples and ten miles southeast of Avellino. The victory drove a deep salient into Nazi positions. The enemy resorted to rear guard retreat. Their artillery slackened in tell-tale defeat.

Seize Foggia Plains

On the eastern end of the front, the British Eighth Army streamed across the Ofanto river at two points at least and burst onto the Foggia plains, within twenty-two miles (the Cairo radio said eighteen) of that city with its thirteen airfields. From these Allied bombers could easily reach all the Balkans.

Steadily mopping up Corsica, French troops and American rangers drove in on the escape port of Bastia from the south and west through sharp German patrol and artillery reaction. Considerable losses were inflicted on the Germans and prisoners were taken, a French communiqué said. The airport of Ghislaia, forty-four miles south of Bastia, was abandoned by the Germans. Other troops were within seven miles of Bastia, where German fight from the island "is seriously hampered" by Allied planes.

Concentrate Against Yanks

Apparently resigned to the loss of Foggia (population 62,340), the Germans concentrated practically all their combat troops in Southern Italy against Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army which was striking frontally and on the right flank of Naples.

Virtually unopposed elsewhere, the only contact Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery reported with the enemy was north of captured Atella in the center. The German command appeared to be confronted with the alternative either of pulling back this force or having it enveloped by a British move from the direction of Corigliano.

British units of the Fifth Army were locked in a toe-to-toe slugging match with strong German forces on the extreme western end of the front—immediately north and northwest of Salerno.

A military spokesman called this battle phase near the sea the most ferocious fought by any Allied troops in the Mediterranean since the Egyptian battle on El Alamein nearly a year ago. The British stormed and took "limited objectives" (Continued on Page 8, Col. 1)

Army Leaders Warn Nation:

Germany Combat Strength Greater Than Four Years Ago, They Caution

Also Discount Possibility of an Early Collapse of Japan; Worst Is Ahead

By WILLIAM FRYE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Army leaders declared today that while the German high command has abandoned expectation of victory, the Nazis' combat strength is greater than four years ago and they will wage a desperate, bloody struggle to stave off outright defeat.

Federal Retail Sales Tax Urged

Taber Also Seeks Expenditure Cuts

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—A federal retail sales tax—at a ten per cent level and coupled with rigid curtailment of government expenditures—was proposed today by Rep. Taber of New York.

Taber, the ranking Republican member of the House Appropriations committee, offered the double plan as an answer to problems of war finance.

Proposal Causes Stir

This was the first advocacy of a sales tax by a leading Republican since President Roosevelt asked for new billions for war purposes, and it caused a stir in capitol hill tax circles.

The development came shortly after the House Ways and Means committee decided to retain in the statute books, possibly with amendments, the renegotiation law for recovery of excessive profits in war contracts, and voted to tighten procedures to speed enactment of a new general revenue measure by January 1.

"There is no question," Taber said in a statement, "but that we should have a sales tax—not with an idea of raising a tremendous amount of money, because it would not, but with the idea of meeting and heading off the surge of inflation."

10 Per Cent Minimum

"If we use the sales tax the least figure we could have would be ten per cent. This probably would yield $5,000,000,000 or less."

The Roosevelt administration has opposed a sales tax as too hard on lower-income people.

Taber disclosed that he is making a special study of federal expenditures, to determine where cuts can be made. He spoke of a possible ninety-five per cent reduction in federal housing and said the Office of Price Administration could take a twenty-five per cent slash.

Driving for speed in consideration of a new general revenue act, in response to an administration request for $12,000,000,000 in addition to the present annual collections of $38,000,000,000, the Ways and Means committee decided to hear no witnesses now on four subjects:

Aerial History Made in Attack By U. S. Planes

Thunderbolts Use Long-Range Tanks

By GLADWIN HILL

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Swift P-47 Thunderbolts carrying long-range fuel tanks made aerial history today when they ran interference in an 800-mile roundtrip for Flying Fortresses which blasted the German North Sea naval base of Emden and the nearby city of Aurich.

Allied airmen in these operations and day-long sweeps over the continent which saw three Nazi airfields and a railway center pounded shot down fifty-eight German fighter planes—eighteen by Flying Fortresses, twenty-two by Thunderbolts, four by Marauders and fourteen by RAF, Dominion and Allied fighters.

Seven Bombers Lost

From all operations, seven heavy bombers, one medium bomber and seven fighters were missing.

A joint British-American communiqué said strong forces of Fortresses of the United States Eighth Air Force attacked installations at Emden and Aurich, fourteen miles to the northeast.

Marauders blasted the airfields at Beauvais-tille and Conches, Mitchell bombers raided the railway center at Rouen-Scottville, sixty miles northwest of Paris, and typhoons bombed an airfield at Abbeville-Brucart, ninety miles northwest of Paris.

Germans Surprised

The unprecedented performance of the Thunderbolts which had the extra tanks fixed to their bellies—a success story like that of the Flying Fortresses which pioneered in high-altitude daylight bombing—surprised the Germans so that returning airmen reported only light opposition.

"Jerry must know the jig is up when P-47s can go that far," said one pilot.

Single-engine fighters had always been considered to be held close to their bases by the limitation on fuel loads. The normal range of the Spitfire, Britain's Spitfire, Britain's standard fighter, is only about 500 miles.

Carry Extra Tanks

The Thunderbolts overcame the limitation with a powerful eighteen-cylinder engine supplying all the power a four-bladed propeller can absorb to lift the extra gasoline load in light composition tanks. These tanks can be jettisoned as soon as they are empty or when the pilots need more speed for fighting.

The success of today's operation indicates the Fortresses can possibly be as much as double the scope of penetrations into Germany with the same iron-clad escort that has confounded the Nazi opposition on shorter forays into France.

Boy's Body Found In Severn River

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 27 (AP)—The body of three-year-old William Henry Waesche, Jr., was recovered from the Severn river tonight near his home at Dream's Landing, Dr. John M. Claffy, Anne Arundel county medical examiner, reported.

Dr. Claffy said he was told the child had been playing with other children at the time he plunged into the water.

Famed Hotel Burns

FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 27 (AP)—The Hotel Mellen, long a famed Fall River bachelorette, was destroyed tonight by a three-alarm fire with damage estimated at $250,000.

Father and Son Die in Gun Battle In Mountainous Area of Virginia

GRUNDY, Va., Sept. 27 (AP)—A pistol-shotgun duel in a remote mountainous section of Buchanan resulting in the slaying of a son by his father who was in turn shot and killed by a neighbor was recounted tonight by Sheriff John A. Rife.

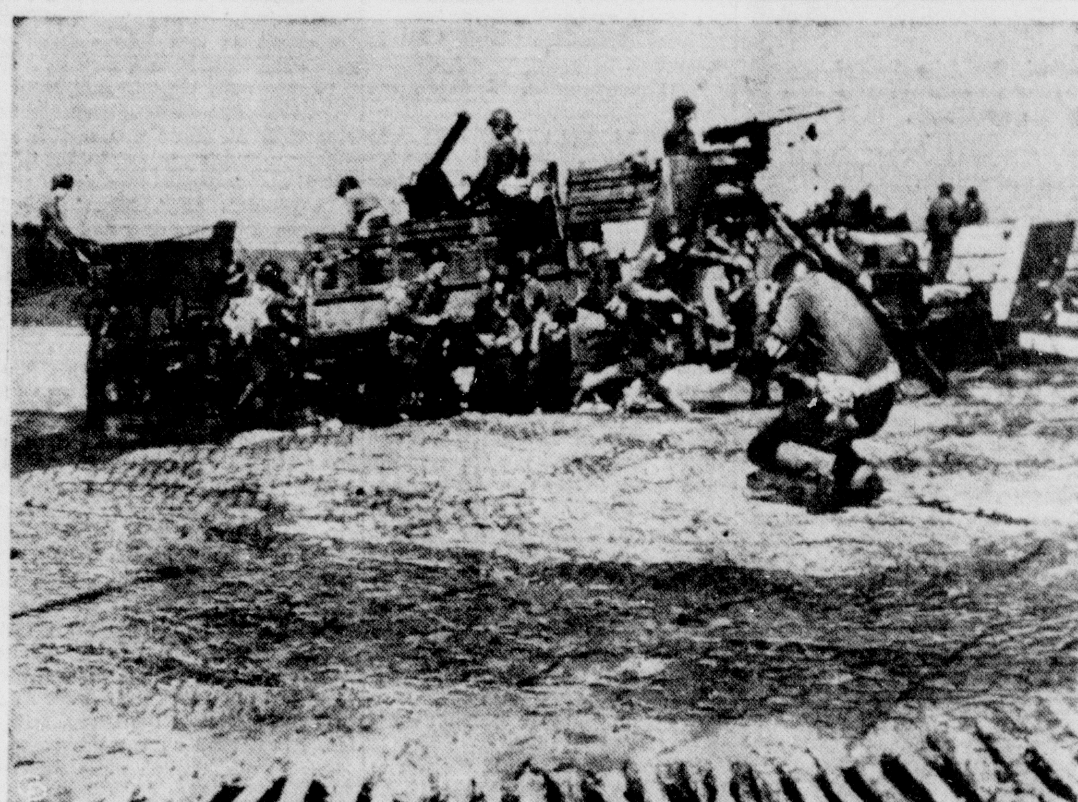

The dead were A. M. "Doc" Keen and his son, Leonard, 25, partners in a logging enterprise at isolated Pilgrims Knob. Rife said Arch Ward, a neighbor, was charged with the death of the elder Keen.

Keen remonstrated with his son for neglecting his family, the sheriff related, and in the ensuing argument, Leonard discharged a shotgun, wounding his father who fired four times with a pistol killing the younger man instantly.

Ward, happening upon the scene, picked up the shotgun, shot and fatally wounded Keen, Rife said. He was released today under $2,500 bond for preliminary hearing before Trial Justice W. C. Dennis October 5.

The shooting occurred late Saturday but news of it did not reach Grundy until last night and Ward's arrest followed shortly afterward, the sheriff added.

U. S. TROOPS UNDER FIRE ON SALERNO BEACH

AS ONE SOLDIER FALLS instinctively to the earth at the sound of a German 88-mm. shell overhead, other troops scramble ashore from landing craft in the Salerno area to reinforce the beachhead there. This was the first taste of battle for many of the men, who, in the face of withering fire, enlarged the small area previously taken by the American Fifth Army. United States Navy photo.

Balkans Uneasy Over Red Gains Against Germans

Fear Nazis Will Fail on Dnieper

By FRANK BRUTTO

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 27 (AP)—Russia's spectacular advances have turned the eyes of the Germans to the Eastern front and brought fear and uneasiness to their Balkan satellites.

A Berlin dispatch to the Basel National Zeitung said today that the German public is "watching the east with burning interest" and that the question on every lip is "will the German retreat end at the Dnieper?"

Advice from Goebbels

Every edition of German newspapers now carries one of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' thirty rules of conduct during the war which soon will be gathered into a brochure to be widely distributed and serve as a "catechism for the German people" in their fifth winter of war.

The seriousness of the retreat in the Southern and Central areas of the Eastern front as well as the "unheard demands" of the soldiers are not withheld from the German people, but confidence in the ability of the German army is stressed.

New Defense Phase

German propaganda on the home front has polished a new phrase, "Gain strength through defense," and gives this as the reason for "withdrawals" on the Russian front. Voelkischer Beobachter, the Nazi party newspaper, stated that the shrinking Eastern front makes possible the creation of reserves which are "especially important in view of the situation on the Italian front" and expressed a hope that rainy weather might bring a halt to the activity on the Eastern front.

Berlin dispatches to Stockholm newspapers indicated that intensive fighting might continue on the Russian front in spite of heavy fall rains. NYA Daylight Alleghanda's Berlin correspondent wrote that both the Russians and Germans now are equipped with newly developed tanks, assault cars and other vehicles which can be navigated.

TEXANS THREATEN TO BLOCK GAS PIPE LINE TO THE EAST

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Threats of counter moves to block construction of a natural gas pipe line from Texas to the east, as proposed in the Tennessee Gas and Transmission Company application approved last week by the Federal Power Commission were voiced today by congressional opponents of the project.

Mrs. Roosevelt Returns Home

Asserts Soldiers Do Not Complain

By EDITH K. GAYLORD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, home from a five-weeks, 25,000-mile tour of South Pacific Islands and Australia, declared today that American men fighting the Japanese realize they have a tough job ahead but want to stick it out.

Breaking precedent, the first lady welcomed men reporters to this press conference but with one exception the visitors left the questioning to their feminine colleagues. He was Bert Andrews of the New York Herald Tribune, who inquired whether she had heard complaints about the home front.

Heard No Complaints

Mrs. Roosevelt declared that she never heard a boy at any overseas post complain—not even the injured in hospitals nor those beset by privation.

Baltimore Ship Workers Break Building Record

BALTIMORE, Sept. 27 (AP)—Bethlehem-Fairfield shipyard claimed its workers set a new national speed record today when they laid a ship's bottom, with 78 plates, in two and three-quarters hours.

When the keel of the first liberty ship was laid two years ago today, workmen required eight hours to lay twenty-nine plates, officials said. A company spokesman said that the Maritime Commission confirmed the yard's claim to a new record.

Another spectacular advance in construction of Liberty ships was demonstrated today, officials said, when just thirty-eight minutes after the launching of the S. S. John Russell Pope workmen had cleared the ways for a new keel—an operation which a short time ago required twenty-four hours.

The vessel whose bottom was laid in two and three-quarters hours was designated only by the yard hull number 2258 and would be named at a later date by the Maritime Commission, a spokesman said.

The launching of the S. S. Pope, 212th Liberty Ship constructed at the yard, commemorated the launching of the S. S. Patrick Rife.

1,320 Villages Freed, Germans Forced To Flee

Huge Quantities Of Arms Seized

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Red army captured an east bank suburb of Dnepropetrovsk in a savage hand-to-hand struggle across the river from that big steel city yesterday, smashed the last German Caucasian Fortress of Temryuk, and swept up 1,320 villages for the biggest day's haul of the war, Moscow disclosed early today.

Hurling German remnants into the Dnieper, the Russians seized the suburb of Nizhne-Dneprovsk and captured huge quantities of equipment the fleeing enemy was unable to remove to the west bank, said a communiqué recorded by the Soviet Monitor.

Advance on Left Bank

At other points along the river "our troops, reaching the Dnieper, were wiping out or capturing individual German groupings on the left bank," it added.

A Berlin broadcast also announced that night-striking Soviet troops, who had breached the Dnieper fifty miles above Kiev in an apparent encircling movement on the Ukraine capital, still were battling the Germans on the East bank. Moscow was silent on this phase of the developing battle for Kiev.

While fighting raged along a 300-mile stretch of the river other Soviet armies in the north pressed on into White Russia, reaching a point only twenty-two miles from Gomel, whose fall was expected soon, and smashed ahead nine miles beyond the fallen bastion of Smolensk.

Free 25,000 "Slaves"

The Soviet communiqué said that 25,000 Soviet civilians of one district who were being driven "to slave labor in Germany" were overtaken and freed, and hundreds of trucks, tractors, guns, and horses fell into Russian hands along with twenty-five locomotives and hundreds of freight cars. Scores of tanks were knocked out or captured.

Nearly 7,000 Germans were killed during the day, the bulletin said. Two thousands fell before the Russian columns pounding toward Mogilev, above Gomel. Entire battalions were wiped out in bitter fighting around the Dnieper river of Kremenchuk, where both sides threw in their armor.

Red Air Force Helps

The strong Red air force not only supported the ground troops in their fighting for Dnieper river crossings but ranged ahead to blow up German troop trains and rail junctions west of the river.

German troops by the hundreds were surrendering under the impact of the Soviet armies. Moscow said, 400 of them being taken in a "daring outflanking maneuver" which forced an estuary at Temryuk in the caucuses and "cut off the retreat of the enemy."

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, Berlin military commentator, said in a broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that the Russians already had crossed the Dnieper at several points, and also admitted that not all of them had been hurled back.

"These Soviet detachments," he said, "either were wiped out in immediate German counter-thrusts or (Continued on Page 8, Col. 1)

Wheeler Waging Uphill Battle Against Bill To Draft Fathers

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) still fought tonight for his don't-draft-fathers bill despite all indications that Senate debate starting tomorrow means its doom. New support developed meanwhile for a substitute measure designed to steer thousands of government employees into the armed forces.

Senator Bailey (D-NC) completed the draft of the substitute, in which federal employment would be denied virtually all draft-age non-fathers and non-combat duty would be prohibited for most commissioned officers of draft age capable of bearing arms.

Senator Clark (D-Mo.) joined Bailey in its sponsorship, and Senators McKellar (D-Tenn.) and Johnson (D-Colo.) voiced their support.

Will Continue Fight

"You can say for me," Wheeler told reporters, "that I am going right ahead with my fight to postpone the drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers until January 1."

Wheeler, who has previously charged manpower waste to the army, said that between 3,000 and 5,000 experienced air pilots are driving jeeps and doing other ground work while the army is training inexperienced men to fly.

"An army regulation," he said, "will not permit a pilot to fly an army aircraft without an army rating of fifty hours pilot experience during the six months previous to entering the army. But, under another army regulation, all civilian pilots on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts were grounded for six months after Pearl Harbor, therefore it was impossible for these men to have flown the fifty hours prior to their entrance in the army."

Point Values for Canned Fruits Advance Sharply in Federal Table

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Sharp point-value increases, ranging from eight to eleven points each, were announced tonight for six types of canned fruits in the new table of processed food point values issued by the Office of Price Administration to take effect next Sunday.

Point reductions were ordered, however, for the two most popular types of canned corn and for green or wax beans.

In addition, dried peas and lentils were made ration-free, upon recommendation of the War Food Administration. The new crop of these items is the greatest on record, WPA reported.

Increases Restricted

The point value increases were restricted, with two comparatively minor exceptions, to canned fruits. Shortages of supply and increasing military needs account for the action, OPA said.

Red sour cherries, in the common number two can were jumped from fourteen points a can to twenty-five. All other types of cherries, except marachino, were increased nine points to a new value of 23. Canned grapefruit went up eight points to a new value of 18.

For the number two and one-half can, apricot point values were advanced nine points to a new value of 36; figs, eight points to 21; and plums or prunes, eight points to 15.

The decreases in canned corn cover all varieties except corn on the cob. Vacuum-packed whole kernel corn in the twelve-ounce can, dropped from fourteen points to ten, and other types from sixteen points to thirteen for the number two size can. Green or wax beans declined from ten points to eight for each number two can.

Asparagus Higher

The only increases in canned vegetables affected asparagus, which was hiked four points to a total

Anglo-American troops in Italy are at the threshold of their indicated first objective, the Naples-Foggia line from the Tyrrhenian to the Adriatic. Perhaps a sixth of the Italian boot—and the important area for Allied purposes is in their possession.

Thus, within twenty-four days of the first Allied landing on the mainland, the Italian bases to make good President Roosevelt's promise of ruthless bombing of Southern and Eastern Germany have been provided. The jump-offs for possible invasions of the Balkans and of Southern France have been seized. And indications point strongly toward Nazi surrender of much more of Italy, possibly all of the long, narrow boot, with no more than hard fought delaying action.

Nazis Leaving Naples

The withdrawal from Naples apparently already has begun. With British Eighth Army forces deploying into the Foggia plain to the northeast and the American Fifth Army converging on Avellino in the west, it is obvious that the Germans will make no serious fight to

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

It was exactly three minutes to 10 o'clock the next morning when Susan Potter walked into Adam North's outer office. Ruth Moorehouse was talking over the telephone.

"Yes, Mrs. Latham, I'll tell him," she said. "The moment he comes in, I don't know just when that will be. Yes, I have the message; you want him to fill in at a dinner tonight at seven. I won't forget... Yes, Mrs. Latham. Goodbye." She placed the receiver on its hook none too gently and said, "Darn!"

"Why, Ruth Moorehouse!" Susan exclaimed.

"Oh!" said Ruth, "I didn't see you."

"What got you so upset?" "That Latham woman! I wonder if she doesn't know there's a war on." Ruth snatched up some papers and began to go through them.

"The idea, thinking Mr. North can drop everything and rush to save her darned old dinner party?"

Susan said, "Don't be too hard on her. After all, he has gotten into the habit of rescuing hostesses who are in trouble."

"I know it," said Ruth, forgetting for the moment that Susan was one of the hostesses he often rescued, "and it's high time he broke himself of the habit."

"That is something for him to decide, I should think," said Susan, a little annoyed. "Where is he, by the way?"

"He left an hour ago. He said he had an important trip to make, and wasn't sure when he'd return."

"But I had an appointment with him at ten," Susan looked at her watch. "It's that now."

"I know. He left word for you to make yourself at home in his office."

"Goodness, I don't want to just sit around and do nothing."

"Sorry," Ruth said shortly, "but that's the message he left." She turned to her typewriter. "He left some figures on his desk about the operating of the cafeteria, if you want to look them over."

"Thanks, I will," Susan said. "I have some figures of my own. Perhaps I can compare them."

Ruth did not reply, and Susan, after giving her a questioning look, went on into Adam's private office. She looked about the place and then sat down in Adam's chair, just as Adam was stopping his car in a lane that ran along beside the deserted Johnson farm. Jack Vinton was with him.

"Something tells me this is a wild goose chase," he said, "but I reckon we ought to look into everything that's the least suspicious."

"You're darn tootin'," said Jack. "And that car without a license plate and with no lights was suspicious, all right. Besides, why should it dart out of that neglected road as it did?"

"I couldn't say," Adam replied. He opened the car door and got out. "Come on, we'll have a look around."

They went up a narrow, grass-grown path that split the front yard, a yard that was lush with weeds and untrimmed honeysuckle vines. The whole place spelled poverty—failure—misery. And it brought to mind the Johnson family—numerous as to offspring, careless as to morals, and always a little hungry. Hard luck had always seemed to hound their heels, Adam remembered: the boys never being capable of making the none too fertile soil produce even a third of what they needed to keep alive—and the girls too eager for cheap finery to help, but rushing off as soon as they were old enough, to take jobs in stores or factories. And now the farm and the house, isolated, left behind by the progressive outside world, looked more forlorn.

that ever. The morning sunlight did not improve the drabness, but succeeded only in accentuating it.

"Gosh, but this is a depressing place, isn't it?" said Jack.

"It is," Adam agreed. "One couldn't find a better setting for devilment," Jack went on. He went up the sagging steps and peered in a window. "The room is"

Hey, Joe—tell her what we cook with here!

Dear Myrt:

Honest to gosh, Myrt, it's a relief to be back from the field. Pation & I are all right, but I was hankering for some cooked food. Know what we use to heat it up with here?—a gasoline blow-torch. It's some different from the marvel of a gas range in your mom's kitchen on Elm Street!

That reminds me... when I get back, know what we're gonna do? Go shopping for the best darned gas range and refrigerator we can buy. I'll have the dough—we can't spend all our pay here—and I'm socking plenty away for war bonds. You better, too, because we'll need it!

Honey, since I got out here where we have to cook with wood or anything we can get, I've just begun to appreciate a gas flame that you can have at a second's notice and can taper off just as quick. When I get back and we set up housekeeping... we're going to have one of those modern all-gas homes. Wait and see!

I ought to help keep jobs going after the war, too. Here'll be plenty besides us, and the backlog they put in bonds ought to keep our plants going full-back and get all our fellows back to work. Won't that something?

Tell your mom this is an S. O. S. for more cookies. Our squad hasn't eaten since a hour ago. They're hungry!

Light Selling Cuts Stock Prices In Sharpest Decline of a Month

By BERNARD S. O'HARA
NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (AP)—Selling was light and timid in today's stock market but there was enough to put leaders down fractions to 2 points and jolt isolated issues as much as 3 or so.

It was the worst average decline since Aug. 23 and was based on more or less nebulous influences rather than spot news. The problems of reconversion for peace-time operations faced by numerous corporations, probable cancellation of many armament contracts and persistent tax doubts were used as arguments against extending bullish commitments for the time being.

The ticker tape idled frequently and transfers of 621,860 shares compared with 641,840 last Friday.

Prominent on the outside were Colorado & Southern, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Sante Fe, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, Goodrich, J. I. Case, Western Union, Eastman Kodak and Pepsi-Cola, Douglas Aircraft finished with a slight advance, along with Standard Oil (NJ) and Johns-Manville.

Falling in the curb were Cities Service, Aluminum of America, Electric Bond & Share, Panetec and Phoenix Securities. Humble Oil was an exception with a gain of a point. Turnover here was 202,240 shares versus 172,775 in the preceding full session.

Trends were downward in the Bond Market. Second grade railroad loans slipped fractions to more than a point generally although some latter recovered part of their losses. U. S. treasuries were steady and showed little change in over the counter dealings. Transactions totaled $8,333,300 face value against $9,071,600 last Friday.

Timely Recognition Of Republican Duty

THIS REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER heartily and happily extends its felicitations to the Republican State Central Committee of Allegany County and no less so to the other party committees of the Sixth congressional district for their forward-looking effort to rejuvenate and solidify the party through the organization of a district organization.

The step is in line with the suggestions that have been made by State Chairman Galen L. Tait all over the state, which it is hoped will in due time bear as good fruit as it did here through the initiative of the local committee and its chairman. As Tait said, a political organization is like a pyramid—candidates and leaders near the apex can do nothing unless the base of workers is broad.

The party unmistakably faces a call to national service, and it should prepare for it and prepare well. Two suggestions made by Tait and Representative J. Glenn Beall at the splendid sessions just held here are worthy of heed by all Republicans of the district, and elsewhere in the state for that matter. Tait urged the enlistment of cordial co-operation by the women with full recognition for them for the patent reason that with ten million Americans absent in the armed forces, including 148,000 Marylanders, the women are now a greater relative political factor. Beall stressed the need of getting party members registered and seeing also that the newcomers sign their declaration of intentions before the deadline of November 6 in order to secure their right to take part in the next national election. Too much stress cannot be placed upon this.

The Republican party in this Western Maryland area can be made a model for the entire state, as Tait declared, a sort of Gibraltar of Maryland Republicanism, and that its leaders recognize its possibilities and responsibilities therein is a good augury for its rejuvenation from the sluggishness resulting from a long political regression and its strengthening for the part it is surely to play in restoring the two-party system to its due place in American governmental processes as well as rescuing the nation from the dangers of New Deal destructiveness. The fact that victory has been several times within the grasp of the party but missed through unfortunate lack of interest and activity, only a little more of which would have turned the tide, is an incentive for party members to get busy now and resume their old-time stride.

A Reassuring Step By the American Legion

A SIGNIFICANT ITEM of the annual national convention of the American Legion at Omaha was the report that it had taken into membership more than 42,000 soldiers and sailors who have been released from the armed forces since Pearl Harbor. Membership was opened to veterans of the present war about a year ago.

While this number is only about four per cent of the million odd men who have been honorably discharged because of wounds, disability, over-age and other causes and who are eligible for Legion membership, the organization appropriated a quarter of a million dollars to spur a recruiting campaign among veterans of this war as they are released from service or demobilized.

It is characteristic of the Legion that it will not use this fund for a direct membership drive but will devote it to expanding its service program for men in uniform and their wives, for a campaign to boost war production and to develop postwar plans for the rehabilitation and employment of veterans of this war. Thus the objective will be sought indirectly but doubtless more effectively.

This report is significant in that it not only reflects the strong vitality of the Legion but also is a portent of the influence it will be enabled to wield in the postwar era. That influence, as in the past, will be typically and thoroughly American, as was indicated in its forthright stand for American participation in "the establishment and maintenance of an association of free and sovereign nations, implemented with whatever force may be necessary to maintain world peace and prevent a recurrence of war." That is an objective devoutly wished by everybody, but it is to be noted that the Legion sets it forth as the best protection for American national interests which it conceives now as heretofore to be of prime importance.

It stands here and on other national affairs, particularly those pertaining to postwar problems, is well-rooted in general American public opinion. It is reassuring that it is to continue to expand and not to remain a relic of another war as it has been a strong bulwark of national security and stability through its consistent, watchful regard for American fundamentals and ideals.

The Conquest Of Corsica

THE CONQUEST OF CORSICA, where French troops have been battling the Germans on the soil of metropolitan France for the first time since the fall of the French republic in June, 1940, will ring Italy from the west and give the Allies important air bases within fifty miles of the mainland and not much farther from the Po valley, where the Germans are expected to make their strongest stand in Italy. Besides this, Corsica brings Allied forces within 200 miles of Southern France and provides a possible springboard for invasion. The potential value of this front is inescapable.

Hardly less important than the strategic advantage which occupation of Corsica represents is the uplift of spirit given to the French people. Although an island, Corsica is an integral part of France proper, and the spectacle of French troops battling for its possession is visible proof of ultimate release for the nation. It is also the fulfillment of General De Gaulle's promise that French forces, newly equipped with American arms, would strike at the moment most favorable to the Allies.

In its long history, Corsica has changed hands more often than almost any other territory of its size in Europe. At one time or another, nearly every country in Europe has had a finger in the Corsican pie. It looks now as if another change of status was imminent—a return to France, which until the Hitler regime had held undisputed jurisdiction over it since 1796.

Topographically and geographically, the island is more a part of Italy than of France. It is only a few miles from the Italian shore, and Italians have always resented French possession and periodically have clamored for its union with Italy.

Love-Killing Recipe

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Here's a guaranteed, tried-and-tested recipe for killing love.

It's no secret. Millions of men and women know it and use it and can testify sadly to its effectiveness.

It's merely a question, a sentence of six words. You look sad, you sulk, or you whine; or you let a tear roll down your cheek and you moan:

"Don't you love me any more?"

Say those six words and you put Love to death. You do it as completely as Othello suffocated Desdemona with a pillow. You drive it away. You bore it to death. You don't give it a chance of survival. You change Love to Pity or to Contempt. Or you put it in chains and it is never free again.

Just those six words can do it. Just those six words:

"Don't you love me any more?"

That makes you a beggar, a whining mendicant of Love. It shows you are desperate and afraid and that you think love can be claimed as a Right, a Debt.

Well, it cannot. You say, "Don't you love me any more?" and the man or woman who hears your pathetic cry turns cold with aversion and shrinks from the appeal.

The woman feels contempt for you—you are not manly, you are neither strong nor lovable.

The man despises you—you are too weak for him and without charm; you are a clammy clinging vine and he wishes you'd take your arms from about his neck.

In that instant, with those words, you destroy the mystery. Your friend may reply impatiently, "Of course I love you!" But you do not believe, you know it isn't true. Love never uses that desperate and distant tone. Love speaks with a glance, with a touch of the hand, and needs no trumpeting interpreter to announce his presence. . . . And if he goes you may bring him back—but not with that beggar's cry to defeat:

"Don't you love me any more?"

End of the War Can Come in 1944, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The end of the war now can be envisaged as not later than the spring of 1945—a maximum of eighteen months more. This presupposes a military knockout—and, of course, the threat, or execution in part, of certain military operations could conceivably bring much earlier.

perhaps in 1944, an internal collapse in both Germany and Japan.

The enforced retreat of the Nazis in Russia which is the direct result of the Anglo-American success in North Africa and in the Italian theater of operations, means that the German general staff at last has prevailed upon Hitler that it would be wise to attempt to hold the Russians near the Polish border while all available Nazi divisions are rushed to Western and Southern Europe to meet the crises developing there as plans for a big invasion by the Allies, aiming simultaneous blow from several places, begin to take shape.

Anglo-American air power, however, is taking such a frightful toll of German production and interfering so effectively with transport inside the continent that the major maneuver of the Nazis looking to war da defense of their inland fortress may prove disappointing to the German people and accelerate the day of the internal collapse.

The German people may soon have to decide whether they want to surrender to the Red Armies or to an Anglo-American army headed by Gen. George Marshall, who is destined to dictate on the field of battle the armistice terms that will end the war in Europe. The belief grows that conservative German opinion will lean toward a surrender to Britain and America believing that private property may thereby be safeguarded from mob rule and a communist revolution.

Same True in Pacific

The end of the war in the Pacific may also be envisaged as likely to occur about the same time or shortly after the German collapse if the plan hinted at in dispatches from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters in the last few days is adopted. The mystery of the MacArthur statement of last week would seem to have been cleared up by the intimation in an Associated Press dispatch that what the generally really wants is for the American army and navy to undertake a joint invasion of the Southern Philippines and retake that archipelago by a frontal assault from the Hawaiian and New Guinea and other Pacific bases that can be used to carry out such operations, thus by-passing the vast Netherlands East Indies and cutting the long Japanese sea lanes of supply to the area of her conquests of last year.

Navy Ready Now

It may be suspected that the recent announcement of the amazing expansion of our navy is one way of saying that the navy is about ready to go back to do the job which in December, 1941, we were unable to do, not only because of an inadequate fleet, but because global strategy had deployed a substantial part of our navy in the Atlantic to assist the British navy.

Today we have the biggest navy the world has ever seen and Britain no longer has to worry about a French or Italian navy, so that all available sea power can be utilized to assist Lord Mountbatten in his sea and air attack on Burma from the Bay of Bengal while the American navy starts across the Pacific to Wake and Guam and the Southern Philippines from which bombing bases can be built to supply our long range bombers and fighter planes that are expected to make Japanese industrial production into a shambles.

Early Surrender Possible

The climax of the war is just ahead of us in the winter and spring months. Our efforts cannot be relaxed but must be intensified. The hardest blows and the biggest losses

THERE'S RUMOR OF A TOUGH BUNCH OF HIGHWAYMEN DOWN THE TRAIL

Club for Territorial Claims of Stalin Is Seen in Any Separate Peace Offer

By MARK SULLIVAN

Short of official announcement, there are now some practical certainties about the relations of our government and the British to the Russian government. These included an early meeting at Moscow of the heads of the foreign departments of the three governments—American Secretary of State Cordell Hull, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, and Russian Foreign Minister V. Molotov.

(Whether Mr. Hull will attend is not certain at this writing—in fact it is not absolutely certain that the meeting will take place.)

Assuming the preliminary meeting takes place, and that all goes well at it, there will be a later meeting between the three heads of state—President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

Approach of these meetings is accompanied by fragmentary revelations of what close observers have long known—namely, that the Russian government has seemed reluctant to have the meetings. Prime Minister Churchill, using guarded and courteous language, has implied this. Last week British Foreign Minister Eden spoke in the House of Commons of the difficulty of collaboration with the Russian government.

German Problem Difficult

That there are differences between Russia and the other two governments, everybody knows, differences of point of view and of interest. These differences become acute as the point approaches where war ends and peace begins. During war, it was not difficult for the three governments to agree upon the purpose of conquering Germany. But what to do about Germany after she is conquered brings up fundamentally opposing points of view. The Russian government is communist—hence can hardly avoid wishing that whatever future government is set up in Germany (or Italy or elsewhere) should take a communist or socialist direction. The American and British governments, being not communist nor socialist, must have a different wish.

In addition to this, there are deep differences about whether Russia, after the war, is to have certain territory she wants—parts of Poland, Finland, Rumania, and the three small Baltic countries, Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania. Mr. Stalin says he needs these territories to form a defense belt against aggression. These territorial desires of Russia run directly counter to principles laid down by Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill in the Atlantic Charter, and to war aims announced by Britain.

Success Brings Advantage

In the meeting about to be held, the Russian government will have an advantage. The advance accrues to her by her success in arms, and by the present state of the war.

It is not necessary to believe, or even inquire into, the rumors about Germany's trying to make a separate peace with Russia. That Germany will make the attempt is inherent in the circumstances. And it is not necessary to assume that Mr. Stalin would make a separate peace—we can assume the contrary, that are ahead but neither Germany nor Japan can withstand the terrific onslaughts of military power by land, sea and air which are in store for them. Will they surrender early and have some proportion of their industrial plant left for the reconstruction period or will they accept the devastation that means a decade of industrial stagnation?

The facts would seem to warrant an early surrender and not a military knockout—if the facts somehow soon can be gotten into Japan and Germany.

Wartime Humor

From the Bethesda Journal

Humor is an indispensable vitamin for the human mind. If man can laugh at himself and his fellowmen he's a long way from being down and out.

Realizing this, the people of the German oppressed countries have built up their morale by making fun of their enemy, exposing his weak sides, making him and themselves feel the irreconcilability of his aims and their own national will for survival. Above all they have made fun of their own privations, their hardships, their thousandfold miseries. In doing so, they found a way to fight the oppressor.

The Germans of course are on the watch for this. When they move in one of their first Verboten is against humor—for humor is the privilege of the free man. He has a right to use it, mellowed with charity, against others and, without restraint, against himself. In a free country, in a democracy, everyone who is tempted to take himself too seriously is constantly reminded of man's frailty and relative insignificance by those of his countrymen who use humor as a weapon and a corrective of human faults.

The reaction of the Belgian people to the German occupation is cleverly portrayed in a subtle little pamphlet released by the Belgian Information Center, 630 Fifth Avenue, New York, called "Belgian Humor under the German Heel," which contains a number of cartoons.

The food problem, which is acute and even dramatic, is the subject of many of these subtle drawings. Among the best is one entitled "Bread Lines" which shows two preoccupied sparrows standing in line for provisions at the back of a horse.

of the fuel shortage, the requisitioning of the fuel shortage, the requisitioning, the increase in prices and the transportation problem. Another theme treated with fervor and evident enjoyment is the war situation especially since the Germans are on the run in Russia.

At the risk of their freedom and their lives, Belgian patriots drew and circulated these pictures. After a while they were smuggled out of the country and reprinted. If their artistic qualities have suffered a little in the process, their spirit, nevertheless, remains intact.

Bum Business Becomes Bum

Panhandling Ends In Chicago Area

CHICAGO, Sept. 27 (AP) — The war has killed that once familiar refrain, "brother, can you spare a dime?"

Mulcahy, an undisputed authority on the subject, has been on the "bum detail" for the past nine years, patrolling an area south of Chicago's loop that has long been the roaming grounds of itinerant and jobless men.

In the old days Mulcahy — with the physical help of his partner — used to arrest an average of fifteen bums a night. That was when the species was belligerent and invaded the loop to ply their profession in its busy streets.

But his last arrest — and he travels alone now — was fully a month ago, he reported.

"The bums are no more," he said. "They've taken war jobs and moved to parts unknown."

Mulcahy says the bum business has become so bum that many low end and west side flop houses which once thrived on room rents of fifteen cents a night may have to close.

Lady, Uncle Sam Will Help You To Control Your Slip

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP) — Lady, does your slip tend to creep up your back? Sir, do you have trouble keeping your shirt tail in?

The government is working on your problem, and reports the development of a gadget that will determine a fabric's "creep rating."

It's a "friction meter" which the Commerce department said was devised by Edwin C. Dreby, research associate of the American Society for Testing Materials at the National Bureau of Standards.

In addition to telling, in cold mathematical figures, which slip or shirt is more apt to creep than another, it will show at a glance which sleeve lining you can slip your arm into with a minimum of wear.

Or in the words of the Commerce department, it will "evaluate the coefficient of friction of fabrics."

Teacher's Auto Is Like Mary's Lamb

IONIA, Mich., Sept. 27 (AP) — School teacher Virginia Cooper has a four-wheel version of the Mary's little lamb story.

As Miss Cooper entered the Ionia senior high school building, her automobile followed her up the steps. She had locked the doors and the car was stopped only when a student opened the hood and yanked out a spark plug wire.

Garage mechanics said a short circuit in the starter was to blame. Miss Cooper had left the car in low gear.

Princess Dress

Pattern 9543 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires four yards thirty-five-inch fabric. Send sixteen cents in coins for this pattern. Write plainly name, address, style number.

Skilled workers and senior laborers with a 1-A draft classification will be accepted. Helper trainees must be draft exempt. Mechanic learners must be no less than sixteen years of age and no more than seventeen.

For complete details see Miss Falcone at the United States Employment Service office here.

No Pleasure Possible In Lady's Jalousy

HILLSDALE, Mich., Sept. 27 (AP) — A Pittsford, Mich., woman offered to demonstrate that a supplemental gasoline ration she sought would not be used for pleasure driving. Rationing officials disclosed her application with a chuckle, but not her name.

"If you have any doubt," she wrote the board, "I would be glad to take you for a trip in my car. The trip will prove there is no pleasure in taking even a short jaunt in a seven-year-old jalopy afflicted with St. Vitus' dance and a quiver like a bowl of jelly. Every trip is a constant anxiety until its end is reached."

GOOD NEWS FROM THE PRODUCTION FRONT

..Now, for fighter and worker alike..

the "BIG PUSH" is on!

On the battlefronts and on the production fronts the drive for Victory sets an even greater pace

Even as this message is released, the fleets and armies and air power of the United Nations press in upon our enemies from all directions. In Europe the attack comprises (1) mighty American and R.A.F. air blows from Britain; (2) assault by sea, air and land from Africa and through Italy; (3) the irresistible power of the great Russian war machine.

Against Japan there are (1) air and land attacks through China and from India; (2) our relentless push up through New Guinea from Australia; (3) attacks by our fleets on enemy outposts; (4) recovery of the Aleutians as a base for possible future offensives.

WITH the walls of Hitler's Europe breached—with Allied might pushing forward in the Pacific—with the Great Attack now under way on every battlefront—the production front, too, is gearing itself to the bitter, decisive effort.

And with ever-increasing demands on America's manpower for the fighting forces, war goods manufacture, food production and other necessary civilian activities, General Motors is keenly aware that the demands of the crucial months ahead call for utmost devotion to the job—for even greater efficiency and productivity from those of us left to work when so many have gone to fight.

Keeping Pace With Change

Successful production for war means change—change to match or surpass the improved weapons of our enemies—change to fit our weapons to new and constantly changing theaters of war—change to build improvements and new designs into our war production, based on the lessons of experience on the actual battlefields.

Of course, changes in production mean temporary setbacks in volume of output, involving, as they do, many problems of tooling, material supply and retraining of manpower.

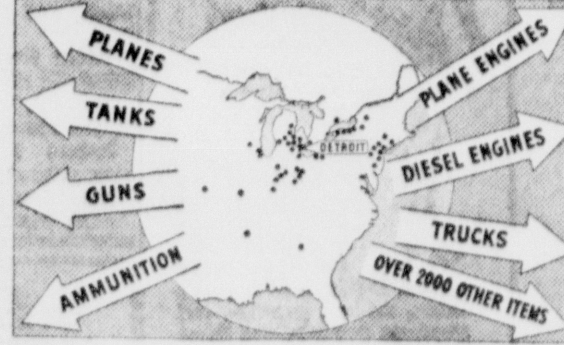

Nevertheless, General Motors is meeting the demands of these changes, with all the difficulties they present, and at the same time continuing to push production higher and higher—now more than 100% above a year ago—each quarter higher than the last. Through improved methods and more effective organization of production we are giving our fighting forces more and more guns, planes, tanks and other war supplies.

We know our job is to give our armed forces "what they want when they want it."

The ultimate in production will depend on the country's decision on the balance between war production and manpower requirements for other purposes.

Every American can well be thankful for the demonstrated ability of our military leaders to cope with the changing requirements of this mechanized and global war.

And it should be equally gratifying to know

A continuous flood of war materials goes out from 112 General Motors plants in 50 cities of the United States and Canada to our fighting forces the world around.

that American industry has also been able to adapt itself to these changing conditions. Cooperating with the military, American industry is performing the greatest production feat in all history.

The Job Ahead

The crucial months ahead will doubtless bring equal if not greater problems, as new strategies call for new equipment.

There must be no let-up in the war effort. There must be the utmost devotion to the job on the part of every man and woman in industry. We are acutely conscious of the need for increased effort, improved methods, greater efficiency and, above all, more effectiveness from available manpower.

As long as the "Big Push" is on along the battlefronts, the production push for more and better weapons will continue in General Motors plants—so that we may deliver, as we are now delivering, our allotted share of the overwhelming air power, fire power, armored power, mobile power and sea power which, on battlefronts the world around, already foretell the Axis' doom.

Annual Missionary Institute Will Be Held on Thursday

The importance of religion in all aspects of life is the theme of the twenty-sixth annual Missionary Institute to be held Thursday in the First Baptist church, Bedford street, under the auspices of the Cumberland Council of Church Women.

One aspect, which will be particularly stressed is the need for a Christian spirit in home and family life. Mrs. Harold Smith, speaking at the afternoon session on "The Grace of Living and Working Together," will emphasize the need for mission work locally and outline methods and ideas to be worked out by the church mission study groups this winter.

Following Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Edwin Saylor will speak on "The Inspiration of Worship" and will present a model worship program "Candlelight," based on the symbolism of Christianity as the light of the world, and the missionary seen as a light bearer.

Mrs. B. L. Moreland will sing, "Jesus, the Light of the World," and all the women attending the institute will take part in the program.

At the evening session, James Spitznagel, county supervisor of schools, will speak on "Juvenile Delinquency," suggesting a practical application of the discussions heard at the morning and afternoon sessions.

The Ridgeley high school and graded school Parent-Teacher associations held a joint meeting last evening in Ridgeley high school.

Officers of the high school association for the coming year were installed by Mrs. James Perry, past president, Mrs. R. C. Baker is president, Mrs. Floyd Kerns, vice-president, Miss Helen Kalbaugh, secretary, and Mrs. Delmar Schertiger, treasurer.

In the elementary association, Mrs. George Ridgeley is president, Mrs. Ralph Baker, secretary, and Mrs. Lester Zimmers, treasurer. The groups decided to meet on the fourth Thursday for the month in joint sessions, followed by individual meetings.

Melvin M. Heiskell, principal, spoke and briefly outlined six goals toward which to direct the winter work. He called attention to the importance of attending to the health needs of the pupils and to a close adherence to P-T standards. He also expressed the hope that a yearly program could be worked out and that a closer relationship between parents, teachers and pupils in high school could be evolved. Better understanding of problems and closer co-operation in solving them is the goal, he concluded.

About forty-five members were enrolled and it was decided to hold an executive meeting early in October at which committees will be named.

 as bare as a last year's bird nest."
 Adam tried the front door, and it opened. "Guess the lock has long since rusted out of action," he said.
 He walked into the hall and glanced about him. "The inside's worse than the outside."

"I remember coming out here once when I was just a kid," Jack said.
 "My Aunt Margaret sent out a box on Thanksgiving Day. The place was overrun with dirty-faced children."
 "It was always like that, even when I was a kid."

They looked into all the rooms—two on either side of the hall, and the kitchen and pantry, which opened out upon a rear porch. There was nothing in any of them to indicate that they had been occupied or even touched since the departure of the last of the Johnsons.

Adam remembered what Jack had said on the way out—telling him about the movie he had seen. "If anyone's manufactured chemicals or high explosives out here," he said,
 "they certainly left no sign."

"Maybe there's something in the barn or one of the outhouses," said Jack. "Anyway, we can see if there are any fresh car tracks."

They went down the back steps and across the rear lot.

"Look! There are tracks!" Jack caught Adam's arm and pointed.
 "A car turned around here in the back yard—and recently, too."

Adam examined the car tracks for a moment. "They could have been left by some picnickers who took the wrong road," he said.

"Maybe," said Jack. "Come on, let's have a look in the barn." He hurried forward, Adam close beside him. "It's a gloomy looking place, all right."

He pushed open the door, and the squeaking hinges made a sound like that of someone in great pain. He hesitated a moment to accustom his eyes to the dimness of the light. The place was high, with a hayloft running across one end, and the morning sunlight penetrating cracks did shimmering things to dust particles and many cobwebs.

"Nothing here, either," he said.
 "No," said Adam. "It also looks as though it had been left alone for ages." He pointed to a door in the rear. "What does that lead to, I wonder?"

"It's a room where they kept the harness, I think," said Jack. "I'll have a look." He started forward and stopped. "Listen!" he said in a half whisper.

"What's the matter?"

"I heard something back there!"

Like a board squeaking."

"Probably a barn rat," said Adam.
 "Just the same, I wish we had a gun."

"We have!" said Adam, and took one from his hip pocket. "Thanks to my permit."

"Swell!" Jack said.
 Adam took a step forward. "Come out with your hands up!" he demanded, feeling a little silly.

The door was kicked open, and a foot appeared—a woman's foot.

"Well, of all things!" said a femmine voice—and Brenda Leigh stepped out.

Germany Combat

war industries in Nazi-conquered territory has grown from 23,000,000.

Jap Air Force Growing

The Japanese air force is getting larger and better and the Nipponese have a reservoir of about 4,000,000 men who can be called up when they're needed.

McNarney, in forecasting still heavier fighting, declared that it had taken thirteen United States and British divisions five weeks to whip the three and a half divisions of Germans and twelve divisions of Italians of "doubtful combat value" even though the enemy's air power had been blasted from the skies by overwhelming Allied air forces.

"Today in Italy we are faced with nearly twenty German divisions; beyond Italy are the Alps, a formidable defense line and many more German divisions. At the present time, Germany is capable of opposing any attack on a vital portion of her European defense with at least ten times the German forces defeated in Sicily."

"The fighting ahead will be hard and bloody. If we become overconfident or sit back and coast either in the army or in the production front, we will be inviting disaster."

First Evidence of Defeat

The first evidence that German military leaders realized the impossibility of an Axis victory and had shifted to a determined defense, he said, came several months ago when German bomber production was reduced drastically in order to step up the output of fighter planes.

The Allied air offensive has weakened the enemy greatly, he said, but the Germans are developing technical improvements which they hope will reduce the effectiveness of Allied bomber attacks. So far, he said, they have not succeeded.

In the Pacific, as in Europe, the principal weapon used to set the stage for future decisive action has been air power, McNarney said.

"No military man has wanted to follow a line of action which involved hopping short distances from island to island in the Pacific," he said, but the enormous supply problems imposed by the Pacific's vast distances have forced us thus far to operations against the perimeter of Japanese strongholds."

"You can be sure," he added, "that future operations will provide for by-passing these outer barriers to the maximum extent possible."

Balkans Uneasy

gated through flooded fields, small streams and mud.

Fall Rains Start

"The Alleghenia dispatch said the rains already had hit several sectors of the front, but Berlin had acknowledged that the Russians were attacking with undiminished fury in an effort to break the orderly German retreat."

The Russian victories are stirring the Balkans, where both Rumania and Hungary are fearful of the fate of their troops and Bulgaria—bound by racial ties to Russia—is reported virtually Nazi-occupied since the death of King Boris.

Hungary, which has been playing a shrewd political fence-sitting game, was reported today to have withdrawn its troops in the Kiev sector, an official spokesman stating that this was done in agreement with Hitler.

The Gazette De Lausanne heard from Bucharest that the Russian advance had intensely moved the Rumanian people, who fear Russia's approach to their country. The government has forbidden public political discussions, but the nervousness is clear in the sharp rise of food prices and the departure of many persons to the interior, away from the danger zones.

Texans

the Texas-Appalachian industrial area. The Tennessee gas and transmission company formerly had headquarters at Chattanooga, Tenn., with Curtis Dall, former son-in-law of President Roosevelt, serving as president. The company now is controlled by the Chicago Corporation, comprised of Illinois investors.

"The building of a gas pipeline from Texas to Charleston, W. Va., is not, according to my point of view, a necessary war measure," asserted Senator Connally (D-Tex.).

"It would entail the diversion of a large amount of steel from shipbuilding and other war purposes. Its consideration should be postponed until after the war. Then all questions of policy could be properly considered and the state of Texas could have sufficient laws and regulations adopted to meet the situation."

Earlier today W. N. Blanton, Houston, Tex. Chamber of commerce official, assailed construction of the line as "the most specific and dangerous threat to Texas' industrial future yet suggested." He said he proposed to seek support of Texas congressmen in opposing the PFC authorization.

"Bucky" Harris's Father Dies in New Jersey

DOVER, N. J., Sept. 27. (P)—Police Judge Thomas Harris died today at his home. He was the father of Stanley R. "Bucky" Harris, former manager of the Philadelphia Phillies.

In his youth the elder Harris had worked in a coal mine and played baseball with the late Christy Mathewson near Scranton, Pa.

MARINE ASPIRANT

CALLING HIMSELF the youngest Marine, uniformed Norman Flebotte, 12, of Springfield, Mass., is seen after Philadelphia police interrupted his trip to the White House. The mascot of a Marine group, he told the police he was going to ask the President to list him officially as a soldier.

Allies in Italy

hold the Naples-Foggia short line position. It is too vulnerable on the flanks to Allied seapower.

Where the next stand of the enemy will come or what final defense line the Nazi high command has drawn in Italy remains to be seen.

The speed with which Allied forces have swept up virtually to the Naples-Foggia line, however, again indicates that the fight in Italy is as yet only a rear-guard action in Nazi conception.

It is being fought, and skillfully fought, to delay the Allied advance while that final defense position is put in readiness. And like the stunning Nazi retreat to the Dnieper in Russia, it has been done thus far with out decisive losses—a reflection of fine German staff work.

German Morale High
Orderly retirement in the face of a hard pressing foe is the most difficult task any army commander can be called upon to execute. And both in Italy and in the far greater and more dangerous retreat in Russia there is no evidence of waning German army morale.

That is a fact to set down in conjecturing how close may be the end of the war in Europe. It underscores the warnings of General Marshall and Prime Minister Churchill that the bloodiest part of the war is only now confronting us.

It seems possible that the Nazi plan in Italy is to fall back as slowly as possible to the Rome-Avezzano-Chieti line across the boot. There is a good highway and railroad system spanning Italy at that point. It follows river courses that would afford good natural protection, the Tiber and Anio in the west and center and the Aterno in the east. It would also be strengthened in the west, based on Rome itself, by known Allied reluctance to put the Eternal City and Vatican City under merciless bombardment.

Seizure of the Foggia plain will give the Allies many air fields from which all upper Italy could be bombed. At Foggia, the British also will have a footing on the main inshore north-south highway up the boot. It passes around the head of virtually all of the rivers flowing into the Adriatic from the Apennines and an Allied advance there would outflank Rome.

The House Ways and Means committee voted against repeal of the renegotiation law for recapture of excessive profits on war contracts, although leaving the door open for amendments proposed by industrial groups. At the same time, the committee took steps to hasten a new revenue bill.

Declaring that the big job still lies ahead, Undersecretary of War Patterson appealed to industrial and labor leaders for a still better job of production. The business men and labor chieftains, along with newspaper editors, were called to a conference here for a report—largely confidential—by army commanders.

The point values of a quart of grape juice was advanced from three to six. This was significant, OPA said, "because it reflects the diversion of a large part of the nation's grape production into the making of jams, jellies and preserves."

OPA observed that consumers would experience a net gain out of the point changes "because the items reduced in point value sell in greater quantities than the items being raised."

Removal of dried peas and lentils from rationing was accomplished by dropping their value from one point a pound to zero; by this technique, OPA could restore the items to the ration list at short notice.

Country shippers were instructed to continue to send monthly reports on lentils and dried peas to OPA.

with the tedium of holding supply lines without the stimulus of action against the enemy.

The boys asked most, she said, about what was happening at home, and whether they would have jobs when they came back.

Asked for overseas reaction to the father-draft question, Mrs. Roosevelt replied that most of the men thought the future here "funny" because most of them were fathers.

Explains Her Trip

The first lady explained that her tour into the Pacific war zones was made because:

1. Australia and New Zealand asked her to come there after her trip to England ten months ago.

2. Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, asked her to inspect Red Cross work there. Mrs. Roosevelt said she would make a written report to Davis, including "specific recommendations."

3. "My husband said it would be well for me to try to see as many of the hospitals and as many of the boys as possible."

Mrs. Roosevelt declared that she paid all of her expenses, except that the place on the transoceanic plane could not be paid for privately, being of government assignment in wartime.

To observations of her press conferences, Mrs. Roosevelt agreed she had lost "quite a little" weight during her trip.

cise thrown back across the river, or at least hemmed in on a very narrow space in the immediate vicinity of the river."

Reds Use Parachutists

He said the Russians were making "extensive use of parachutists and air-borne troops," and said the Russians were not so much interested in crushing German bridgeheads on the east bank of the Dnieper as in crossing to the west shore and establishing their own bridgeheads "at as many points as possible."

This Soviet infiltration to the west bank, he hinted, extended all the way from the Zaporozhne sector below Dnepropetrovsk to the confluence of the Pripiet and Dnieper rivers above Kiev.

With the Russians silent on details of the actual fight on the east bank opposite Kiev, Sertorius said the situation there was static. He said he believed the Russians would not try frontal assaults, but would seek to collapse the entire German Dnieper line by cracking the Northern and Southern ends.

The Germans have held Dnepropetrovsk since its capture by the troops of Field Marshal Ewald von Kleist, Aug. 26, 1941. The city had a pre-war population of more than 500,000 working in its network of steel and other metallurgical factories.

The $110,000,000 American-built Dneprostroy dam and hydroelectric works whence the city drew much of its power was located about forty miles south of the city. The Russians wrecked the works in their "scorched earth" retreat two years ago.

Kiev Under Heavy Fire

Kiev itself was reported under Soviet artillery fire from the lower east bank, and there were indications that the Germans were evacuating some personnel there.

The fall of Temryuk foreshadowed the flight of all German troops from the last Axis foothold in the Northwestern Caucasus opposite the Crimea. The Russians were within twenty miles of the tip of the Taman peninsula after capturing Blagoveshchenskaya, twenty miles below the Sea of Azov port on the opposite side of the peninsula.

A Berlin broadcast acknowledged the evacuation of Temryuk, saying it had been giving up Sunday morning after its military installations were dynamited.

Workers at the Fairfield yard joined those in seventy shipyards and 350 factories throughout the nation in pledging greater production and increased war bond purchases in observance of "Victory Fleet Day."

Weather in Nearby States

WEST VIRGINIA and WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA: Warner.

RIGHT now in the nation's 163 poultry houses there are 163 million more chickens than there were a year ago. There isn't enough feed in sight to take care of all of them. Here are some good points to remember:

One—You can't afford to feed a single "star boarder" this year. Keep your catching hook handy and cull out every week the birds that aren't producing.

Two—Get rid of the rats. Three rats will eat enough feed in one year to care for two laying hens.

Three—Keep the birds comfortable so they can use their feed to best advantage. Each 100 layers should have about 20 to 24 feet of hopper space. A one-inch lip nailed on the hoppers will keep the birds from billing feed out on the ground.

Next time you order feed, ask your Southern States Cooperative Service Agency for some All Mash Ration. This mash is fortified with vitamins and high protein ingredients—and makes your regular Southern States feeds go farther. All Mash Ration is equivalent in feeding value to a mixture of equal parts of Super Laying Mash and coarse scratch. You don't need to feed any grain when you feed All Mash Ration.

If you need new feeders, talk over your needs with your local Southern States Service Agency. If anyone can get them for you, he will.

IT'S A FACT!

that the layers on the farms of Southern States patrons laid enough eggs last year to supply every man, woman and child in Baltimore, Richmond, Wilmington, Wheeling and Washington with an egg for breakfast every morning for a year.

Young Men

FROSTBURG, Sept. 27.—The second qualifying test for the army specialized training program and the navy college program, V-12, which will be given throughout the country November 9, will be administered at Frostburg State Teachers college, John L. Dunkle, president, announced today.

A pamphlet of general information which contains an admission-identification form may be obtained at the college. This form properly filled out will admit to the students between the ages of seventeen and twenty-one years, inclusive, who are recent high school graduates or who will be graduated by March 1, 1944. Persons desiring to take the test should make their intentions known immediately to Dr. John A. Cooper in order that the test supplies may be ordered.

The army specialized training program and the navy college program enable students to continue academic training at government expense, following induction into the armed services. Successful completion of the courses may, following officer training, lead to a commission in the army or the navy.

Those selected for the army will, after further screening and basic military training, be sent to college. Students chosen for the navy program, after selection by the Office of Naval Officer Procurement, will be detailed directly for college. Students who attend college under either of the programs will be under military discipline on active duty in uniform with pay. All expenses, including tuition, food, housing, books and uniforms will be paid by the army or the navy.

Principal Arthur W. Taylor of Beall high school is co-operating with President Dunkle at the teachers' college in directing all applicants in this area to the college for the forthcoming examinations.

Believed to be the oldest resident of the Eastern Shore, Mrs. Wells doesn't know there is such a thing as fuel rationing. Her home is heated by a wood range and fireplace.

And she never has to worry about pipes freezing—water is brought to her house in a bucket.

None of her seven grandchildren, six great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild is in the armed forces, and to her "the war" is the civil war. She can occasionally remember seeing Lincoln during his political campaigns.

Having always lived in the country and seldom even knowing there was an election going on, Mrs. Wells has never voted.

She's ridden on a train only once, and that was years ago when she visited Ocean City. "I always figure you shouldn't go any farther than you can walk," she remarked.

The great-great-grandmother has never learned to read or write.

Although she is a little deaf and has lost her sense of smell, the aged Eastern Shore woman is very seldom troubled by the ills of old age. She seems in good health and works all day at various household tasks.

When Mrs. Wells celebrated her hundredth birthday recently, the whole town joined in the celebration. She got numerous bouquets and two huge cakes decorated with "store-bought" candy roses.

Tech. Sgt. C. F. Bowers, Jr., has completed a five week course at the Sperry Anti-Aircraft school in New York and has returned to Fort Bliss, Texas, where he is a member of an Anti-Aircraft Searchlight battalion.

Pvt. Joseph Joseph, Camp Van Dorn, Miss., returned yesterday after visiting home folks.

Believed to be the oldest resident of the Eastern Shore, Mrs. Wells doesn't know there is such a thing as fuel rationing. Her home is heated by a wood range and fireplace.

And she never has to worry about pipes freezing—water is brought to her house in a bucket.

None of her seven grandchildren, six great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild is in the armed forces, and to her "the war" is the civil war. She can occasionally remember seeing Lincoln during his political campaigns.

Having always lived in the country and seldom even knowing there was an election going on, Mrs. Wells has never voted.

She's ridden on a train only once, and that was years ago when she visited Ocean City. "I always figure you shouldn't go any farther than you can walk," she remarked.

The great-great-grandmother has never learned to read or write.

Although she is a little deaf and has lost her sense of smell, the aged Eastern Shore woman is very seldom troubled by the ills of old age. She seems in good health and works all day at various household tasks.

When Mrs. Wells celebrated her hundredth birthday recently, the whole town joined in the celebration. She got numerous bouquets and two huge cakes decorated with "store-bought" candy roses.

Will Give Program
Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Chastain will give a free entertainment in the First Methodist church, Thursday evening. The program will consist of vocal and instrumental numbers, in addition to a short, evangelistic message by Dr. Chastain.

Dr. Chastain is an authorized evangelist of the Southern Illinois Conference of the Methodist church. Mrs. Chastain is known as the children's evangelist and song leader.

Gigantic Herd Of Cattle Arrives

CHICAGO, Sept. 27 (AP).—A huge herd of cattle—the greatest in seventeen years—loped into the twelve principle livestock markets of the nation today.

Shipments of cattle totaled 156,900 head. Statisticians searching for a larger figure, had to turn back as far as September 23, 1926, when 162,000 head were received at the dozen market centers.

Kansas city received 40,000 salable head, the largest shipment today. Omaha had 26,500 and Chicago 21,000.

Most of the beef-on-the-hoof came off the western ranges. How large a percentage would go to mid-west feeders for fattening and how much would be sold to packing houses for immediate slaughter was a matter of speculation. Livestock authorities said competitive bidding would be strong between feeding and killing interests.

Barton Church Has Rally Day Program

BARTON, Sept. 27.—The Presbyterian church observed "Rally Day" at both the Sunday school and the regular church services Sunday morning. The subject for the occasion was "I Must Be About My Father's Business." The sermon was preached by Alex Cross and special music was rendered by the choir.

Personal Mention

Corp. Harry Clark returned to Lexington Signal Depot, Lexington, Ky., after spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Clark.

Mrs. Ernest Schramm, Sr., has received word that her son, Calvin, has arrived at the naval training station at Sampson, N. Y. Schramm entered the navy last Tuesday.

Pvt. Louis Lashbaugh is spending a furlough with his wife and his father, William Lashbaugh.

Pfc. Charles Lamberson, Fort George G. Meade, spent the weekend with his wife, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Lamberson.

Seaman Second Class Donald Wilson, Jr., Bainbridge, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Donald Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Baughman and Miss Catherine and Charles Wilson, Baltimore, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. James P. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Otto and daughter, Elise, returned to Baltimore after spending the past week with Mrs. Otto's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Williams, Sr.

Additional efforts will be made, he added, to sell bonds to wage earners and to salaried men and women. Sales to corporations and businesses in the state yesterday stood at 168 per cent of the quota, as compared with a national average of ninety-three per cent.

"But with sales to individuals only at the fifty-eight per cent mark—gratifying as that is to the workers when compared with the average for the rest of the country—it is clear," Miles continued, "that one of the chief purposes of the campaign is not being fully achieved, namely, the prevention of paralyzing inflation due to excess purchasing power in individual hands without a corresponding supply of purchasable goods in the country."

The campaign will continue through Saturday.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED

The light that failed Red Skelton has something to do with the touch on his borrowed suit, owned by Andrew Tombs, who suspects it is his but isn't quite sure. Eleanor Powell looks on with a queer gaze at her eye, as it is all a mystery to her. This all happens in the musical comedy, "I Dood It," slated to open tomorrow at the Maryland theatre.

Theaters

Picture Reveals Japanese Schemes

Sensational revelations of Japan's mad schemes for world conquest are made in RKO Radio's remarkable new film offering, "Behind the Rising Sun," now at the Liberty.

Margo, Tom Neal, J. Carrol Naish, Robert Ryan and Gloria Holden head the cast of the picture, which weaves its human story about the lives of a small group of Americans and Japanese in Tokyo.

Edward Dmytryk directed the production, which was scripted by Emmet Lavery from James R. Young's book of the same name, based on his thirteen years as a Tokyo news correspondent.

Two Veterans Pitch In On "I Dood It" Comedy

Two veterans of the screen aid and abet Red Skelton and Eleanor Powell in their hilarious appearance together in "I Dood It," coming tomorrow to the Maryland theatre. Hank Mann, of the custard pie era of silent days, portrays an added actor in the song-stupided film and Buster Keaton acted as technical adviser.

Skelton plays a pants' presser masquerading as a man about town. When he induces Miss Powell, playing a stage star, to marry him his troubles begin and the fun grows fast and furious.

Vincente Minnelli directed with a cast that includes Richard Ainly, Patricia Dane, Thurston Hall, Sam Levene, John Hodiak, Morris Ankrum and Butterfly McQueen. Jimmy Dorsey and his band are featured for the musical background.

National Service Act Will Be Discussed at American Forum

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The fall-winter complexion of the NBC Tuesday night schedule takes on the full hue with current broadcasting. In other words, Fibber McGee and Molly come back at 9:30 to join the recently returned Bob Hope and Red Skelton. They'll have just about the same lineup for talent except for a couple of departures into Uncle Sam's service.

America's Forum of MBS, which had been reported about ready to change time again, nevertheless is continuing on Tuesday nights at 8 o'clock. The question on the agenda is "Why a National Service Act?" with debate supplied by representatives of government, industry, labor and the clergy. Among the speakers is Charles Evans Hughes, Jr.

Talk by Gen. Hines
Scheduled for the Blue at 2 p. m. is the forty-fourth national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars from New York, with Brig. Gen. Hines to talk on "Taking Care of America's Disabled Veterans." Another Blue feature at 4:45 in place of Ted Malone's Between the Bookends is a special in connection with national freedom week sponsored by the National

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Saving Seeds from Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY

If you are planning to save seed from this year's Victory garden only consider seed from vigorously growing plants. As some diseases carry over on or in seeds it is important that the plant from which seeds are selected be strong and healthy.

When seeds are fully ripe it is a simple matter to shake them from the seed pods as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. If the weather should be damp the seeds should be exposed to the sun for a time before putting into a container for storage. Seeds should be kept in a cool, dry place for if they are allowed to absorb moisture germination may start.

Since many Victory gardens will have outstanding specimens of squash and pumpkins, many persons may wish to save the seeds. In selecting either squash or pumpkins for seed purposes pick out fruits which are well colored, large and heavy.

Cut the squash or pumpkin in half and scrape out the pulp and seeds. A wooden, bowl, porcelain pan or glass jar should be half filled with the seed mixture, for when the seed begins to ferment the mass will swell and fill the container. Allow the seeds to ferment for several days until the mucilaginous material has separated from the seed. Stir well, then add water. Keep stirring vigorously and the good seed will settle to the bottom of the container as shown in the Garden-Graph, while the pulp mixture and some light seed will float to the top. Pour off the pulp mass and wash the good seed with several waters. Then dry and store the seed.

California and Washington have enacted legislation providing for direct appropriations to local governments to enable them to meet emergency war conditions.

The Kansas legislature has provided for distribution of seventy-five percent of net revenues from cigarette stamp tax collections to cities and counties.

Vessels carrying troops and supplies to Australia cover an average of 14,000 miles on a round trip.

A UNIVERSAL CONVENTION

One convention which is universal among all experienced players is that which involves the rebid of one suit followed by the bidding of another one. It shows the first suit to be of at least six cards in length and the second to be of only four. By its use, many a safe trump suit of six cards in one hand opposite two in the other, is uncovered. Use of this convention can also point the way toward No Trump as the contract with minimum risk.

clubs and four hearts. So, when North put the side into 3-No Trumps, he knew exactly what kind of risk he was taking. As it developed, he made the contract, after East led the heart 5, though there are almost limitless possibilities to the variations which can come from different ways of playing the hand and different defenses.

At Table 1, where neither North nor South was particularly keen in bidding technique, North anyway knew enough to be sure that, after South said 3-No Trumps, he was in a spot. Having bid spades once, then diamonds once, then spades again, he had shown his partner only five spades and four diamonds. This is why he decided to try again at 4-Spades, doubling himself set two tricks, doubled by East. He lost two tricks in trumps and three tricks to the three side aces.

NEA Leader Talks On Postwar Fate Of Education

Miss Eva G. Pinkston Is Speaker at Meeting of County Principals

"We must avoid giving children facts prejudicing them against other nations," but must have them understand that we fight not to destroy people but what harms people," Miss Eva G. Pinkston, executive secretary of the department of elementary school principals of the National Education Association, told Allegheny county elementary school principals at their meeting last night at Central Y.M.C.A.

With postwar national and international educational developments as her theme, Miss Pinkston reported for the first time, she said, the meeting of the Liaison Committee for International Education, headed by Dr. Grayson Keefeauver, which was held recently at Harpers Ferry, W. Va., and attended by educational leaders from Latin American and nations devastated by the Axis powers.

Germany has made a difference between the eastern and western countries, Miss Pinkston said, with the eastern bearing the greater portion of its oppression. She reported that the Czechoslovakian educator revealed that when the Nazis took over completely, they quartered soldiers in the elementary schools so they would have to close . . . high schools were placed at a minimum and all universities destroyed. Girls were dropped from all schools and one second grade reader was abolished because it contained the sentence, "Herman pushed Adolph into the water."

No More Greek "Youth"

The Greek representative, Miss Pinkston continued, emphasized the sense of victory in the Greek youth who are fighting because they expect to win. There are no more Greek children, it was revealed, because they have gone through too much to remain childlike.

The most gruesome and shocking picture was given by the Polish delegate, according to the speaker, who described Poland as being transformed into an intellectual desert. The situation there is far from hopeless, however, she said, because along with its revolutionary fighting, the Polish underground is establishing its own schools.

In Belgium resistance has been minimized, its representative told the liaison committee, Miss Pinkston said. The number of books in the libraries there has been reduced from 900,000 to about 15,000, and three of the four universities closed, with two university presidents thrown into concentration camps because they refused to give a list of students' names to the Gestapo.

U. S. Will Be Adviser

The liaison conference revealed that in Norway teachers and schools were in the front line of destruction but that the youth have learned to carry responsibilities as their families were taken to concentration camps, Miss Pinkston stated. The Norwegian youth consider laziness a sign of desertion, she added.

The situation in China was highlighted by the war of reconstruction that went on almost simultaneously with the war of destruction, according to China's representative. It was indicated at the liaison conference, Miss Pinkston said, that the position of the United States in postwar international education will be primarily that of an adviser, with some policing necessary until qualified leaders take over in their own nations.

It will take about three generations to wipe out what has been taught in Nazi and Fascist countries, she said, as she warned against the danger of the spread of the disease. The rebuilding of the educational program must include such concepts as universal schooling accessible to all levels, factual instruction, adult education, freedom of expression, international relations, economic inter-relationships, and understanding of tolerance and goodness.

No Russian Representative

Among other startling facts revealed at the conference, Miss Pinkston said that one representative called attention to the six million homeless children up to fourteen years of age who are roaming Europe in gangs like packs of wolves.

There was no representative from Russia, Miss Pinkston pointed out, but the other delegates indicated that Stalin was ready with a new movement to start in Germany. It was also revealed at the meeting, she continued, that the reason Stalin has failed to attend the Roosevelt-Churchill conference is that "somebody" made a slighting remark about Russia which diplomat Stettinius is being sent to erase.

Miss Pinkston was introduced by Miss Nell Dowling, president of the county association.

Schools To Stress Facts on Reducing Wastage of Food

Waste Caused by Individual of Most Concern, Kopp Asserts

Allegheny county schools will have an important part in bringing facts about food waste to the attention of people and providing learning experiences for pupils in order that they may swing into action to reduce food waste, Charles L. Kopp, county superintendent, announced yesterday.

Circulars entitled "Reducing Food Waste—The School's Part in This Wartime Service" have been received at the board of education office and will be distributed to the schools, Kopp said.

Kopp pointed out that best estimates place the total food wasted from the time of harvest in the fields to the time the food is actually eaten—at from thirty to forty per cent, or thirty to forty pounds of food waste for each 100 pounds produced.

Of most concern to the schools are the types of wastage which are caused by the individual and which may be reduced by individual cooperation.

The amount of food which it is estimated is wasted in homes, namely fifteen per cent, would (1) supply the entire needs for Lend-Lease and our armed forces for the year of 1942 or (2) feed the entire population of the United States for six weeks.

To help reduce this loss appreciably is a real challenge to the schools.

Saving food through reducing food wastage is an action program in which everyone connected with the schools of the county can take part.

Plans for the state convention of the Improved Order of Red Men, which will be held in Cumberland April 25, 26 and 27, 1944, will be discussed at a meeting of the district advancement council on Friday, October 1 in Midland.

Albert Holler, of Westernport, great sachem, and Ewald W. Ruehl, of Cumberland, great sampan, will be an official visitation to the tribe at North East, Md., tonight.

Child Cuts Lip in Fall
Against Clothes Basket

Sandra George, 3, daughter of William George, 206 Cole street, was treated in Memorial hospital at 2 p. m. yesterday for a laceration of her lip, suffered when she fell against a clothes basket while chasing a dog.

Seymour Zirk, 17, Romney, W. Va., is undergoing treatment in Memorial hospital for a fractured right leg, suffered Saturday afternoon when the truck, hospital attaches said he was driving, collided with another truck near Romney.

Two Paw Paw, W. Va., girls reported to police yesterday as missing since Saturday, were picked up on North Mechanic street last night and held in city jail for further investigation. A race track follower was arrested in the same case and also is being held for investigation, police said.

Small Forest Fires Keep Wardens Busy

Fire wardens and crews are being kept busy by small forest fires which occur almost daily, according to the district foresters office here.

A small blaze at Queen's point near McCoolle Sunday afternoon destroyed about one-fourth of an acre before it was extinguished by Warden Bodkin and the McCoolle crew. Two fires were reported yesterday, one between Barton and Moscow, acreage undetermined, and the other at Twenty-first Cut near McCoolle, which destroyed about half an acre. Bodkin's crew and that of P. Meyers fought both blazes.

Hunters are urged by the forestry department to be particularly careful while the drought continues.

Girl Breaks Back In Auto Crash on Vale Summit Road

Car State Trooper Says Was Driven by Donald Martin Overturns

Injured about midnight Sunday when the automobile in which she was riding overturned on the Vale Summit road, Betty Stonebraker, 17, Narrows Park, was admitted to Memorial hospital at 9:45 p. m. yesterday for treatment of a fractured vertebrae. Her condition was reported as "fairly good."

State Trooper Charles D. McLane, who investigated, said six young people, all 16 and 17 years of age, were in the car driving from Barton to Cumberland, when the accident occurred near Vale Summit.

Only Miss Stonebraker and another girl, Betty Leatherman, 17, 217 Glen street, were injured. The latter suffered an injury of her left shoulder.

Driver of the car, McLane said, was Donald W. Martin, 17, 717 Hill Top drive, and no charges were entered against him. The trooper said the road is narrow and high crowned.

Martin told him, the trooper said, the car apparently hit a rut, started to shimmy and swerved to the left toward a pole. In an effort to avoid striking the pole, the youth turned the car sharply to the right, McLane said, and it overturned.

Other occupants of the car were Sara L. Stotler, 16, 546 Bedford street; Robert MacMillan, 17, 718 Maryland avenue; and James Day, 17, 111 Oak street.

McLane said Mrs. Ethel M. MacMillan, 718 Maryland avenue, is the owner of the car.

Thursday Will Be Cumberland Day At Races and Fair

Thursday, September 30, was named Cumberland Day at the fair by the mayor and city council yesterday. Commissioners William J. McDonald and James Orr favored Wednesday, the usual day, but were outvoted.

By a unanimous vote, the council voted not to repeal the picketing ordinance which limits the number of pickets during a strike and requires that they secure permits. The request for the repeal had been made by the Maryland Labor Unity Conference.

A proposal by Dr. Robert W. Work, county civilian defense director, that fire fighting equipment allotted to Cumberland be distributed to industrial plants and nearby communities was approved on condition that these groups agree to fight Cumberland fires when called upon.

The Investors Realty Corporation appealed a ruling of Reid C. Hoehnicks, fire chief, which ordered a building at 604-612 Virginia avenue removed because it is a fire hazard. Edward J. Ryan, counsel for the firm, explained that it had just purchased the building and plans to remodel it. The matter was referred to the city engineer.

Beginning the first of the year the health department will occupy the second floor of the Public Safety building, according to a final decision of the council. The city engineer was instructed to investigate a claim of $75 damages for destruction of some cherry trees on the property of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Grabenstein, who alleged that city employees chopped them down.

The following orders were approved: Granting tax insolvencies of $1,433.60; water insolvencies, $53.88; pay George L. Long $10.00 for water rent paid in error; pay Agnes C. Long $8.55, water rent in error; pay Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, $300 for band concert; pay Nelson W. Rucker $110, for concert sound service.

Harry H. Jones was named to the police department effective July 22 and Richard P. McCordell was named temporary police clerk.

New A Gasoline Ration Books Have Not Arrived Here Yet, Radcliffe Says

Motorists in this section need be in no hurry applying to War Price and Rationing Board No. 1-1 for new A gasoline ration books, because they haven't arrived here yet, Karl W. Radcliffe, chief board clerk, said yesterday. The new books became good November 21.

Radcliffe explained that the local rationing board is being swamped with daily applications and added that he has no idea when the books have not arrived.

Orders for the books were submitted two months ago, he said. Motorists submitting applications can get just as good service by mailing them, he said, as by personally bringing them to the board's office.

Divorce Is Granted

George W. Steward was granted a decree of absolute divorce from Grace E. Steward in circuit court yesterday by Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan. They were married in 1913 and Steward charged that she deserted him in 1939. He was given custody of their three minor children.

Gateway Chatter

Even the birds are going to the ration board in Oakland.

Whether or not it was to see the necessity of requiring red meat stamps from hunters, will not be known in this instance because the young pheasant which called on the ration board last week was a little too eager. It dashed against the window pane, shattering the glass, and landed on the venetian blind, still alive and kicking, but with a broken neck.

Conveniently Lloyd Cook, deputy game warden, happened to be right there and he gave permission to the ration board employees to keep it for a feast. So for the first time in her life, Miss Coral McRobie, clerk, picked feathers from a pheasant in her apartment nearby and pheasant was divided at a luncheon — legally eaten although still out of season.

When the crash of window glass came, office workers said they first thought somebody had shot at them. A lot of people gripe about the ration board, and the rules and regulations handed down from Washington, but no one has as yet been fined for the point of shooting, although a citizen reported seeing a farmer about to kick down the door of the place in Oakland, the other day, when he found them closed for the afternoon.

Killing Is Premeditated

In commenting on this incident, Smith characterized it as an open and premeditated killing.

"The violators carefully dressed them out and drove their cars out into this field to load up the illegal meat. It would require a gang to operate so openly," Smith declared.

"I get reports of these killings frequently. In July I saw the legs of a freshly killed doe that had been thrown out of a car along Rock Lodge road beside Cherry Creek."

"It is hard for the enforcement officers to apprehend violators who use automobiles to make their getaway. The only way to stop these illegal killings is with the co-operation of all the citizens. If these motorized gangs are coming into Garrett county from the outside, the residents of the county can help drive them out. If they are natives their neighbors should resent such acts and assist in their apprehension."

Smith said that he cannot believe that regular hunters are making these killings. By regular hunters he said he meant men who hunt for the sport of hunting and who appreciate the values of having wild life in the woods.

"All sportsmen own shotguns; we keep them clean and we look them over different times during the year. They are sort of companions that bring back pleasant memories of hunting experiences," Smith stated.

"How many sportsmen could use his favorite shotgun to go out and deliberately kill a doe which has a nursing fawn beside her and then shoot the fawn beside its dead mother is beyond my comprehension."

Take Unfair Advantage

"It is not difficult for the violator to kill game during the season when they are raising their young as we frequently see how tame they are at this time. It is just taking an unfair advantage of the game and all who hunt legally. When the correct time comes for harvesting the legal animals and birds are mature and all hunters have an equal chance to get some. By following the rules of the game those who play it will have some respect and real pleasure as a reward."

State Official Condemns Illegal Killing of Deer

Fulcher P. Smith Asks Aid of Citizens in Apprehending Violators

An appeal to all citizens for their co-operation in helping stamp out the illegal killing of deer in Garrett county was made yesterday by Fulcher P. Smith, of the Maryland Inland Fish and Game Commission.

Smith issued the statement following his return from the Deep Creek lake station where he and Elmer Haulenbeck, deputy game warden, discovered that a doe and its still nursing fawn was killed at close range with shotguns loaded with buckshot, probably as they came out into the clearing just at dusk.

Killing Is Premeditated

In commenting on this incident, Smith characterized it as an open and premeditated killing.

"The violators carefully dressed them out and drove their cars out into this field to load up the illegal meat. It would require a gang to operate so openly," Smith declared.
